Gen Y happy to get onboard

Renewed interest among young adults could be response to technology-filled world: Board game enthusiast 'People still crave actual human activity,' he says

Monopoly has never been so hip. Risk never so cool.

Board games are making a comeback, and the typical players — children who squabble over their turn in Candy Land or seniors who carefully lay down a double word score in Scrabble — are making room for new contenders.

Twenty-somethings now hunker down to try their hand at one of the oldest pastimes, in what some enthusiasts are calling the "golden age" of board games.

"It used to be you'd go to the bar and if you wanted to have fun and party, on top of the cover, you're looking at dropping $40 on drinks," said Jamie Weir, 25, a multimedia specialist from the Toronto area, who recently discovered a cheaper alternative to the local pub — a coffee house stacked with games.

"Playing a bunch of board games, chatting, seems like a wonderful substitute (for going to a bar)."
JAMIE WEIR, 25

Tired of the same old bar scene, Weir began gathering with friends to toss the dice.

He then happened upon Snakes and Lattes, a new Toronto establishment that he and his friends have "gone nuts" for.

Weir said it's now his local watering hole, where he stops by two or three times a week to play one of the thousands of games from the popular Settlers of Catan to his latest addiction, Quatro, a "Connect Four on steroids," said Weir.

H1N1 protection in seasonal flu vaccine

Mid-October vaccine rollout is pre-emptive strike against the flu
It takes a couple weeks for antibodies to form: Doctor

Canadians who chose not to be immunized against H1N1 during the pandemic will have another shot at getting protected with this year's seasonal flu vaccination.

Next week, provinces and territories across the country will begin rolling out the 2010-11 vaccine, which includes H1N1 A and two other strains — H3N2 influenza A Perth and influenza B Brisbane.

All children over six months old and adults of all ages are encouraged to get a flu shot, said Dr. Patricia Huston, senior medical adviser for the Public Health Agency of Canada.

"It will protect you against the pandemic H1N1 strain, for example," said Huston. "But we anticipate it will be a new H3N2 strain that will be circulating this year, so previous flu vaccines will not cover you for that.

Early infections

There has been some early influenza activity in Canada. In southern Ontario, for instance, two long-term care residences and one school had recent outbreaks of the new H3N2 strain.

"There is no harm in having a repeat vaccine ... and it will protect you for the new strains."

Dr. David Williams, Ontario's associate chief medical officer of health, said the province's theme for this flu season is "getting back to business" after the pandemic.

Ontario has purchased five million doses of vaccine and all residents are eligible for a free flu shot under the province's universal influenza immunization program.

Charges in series of robberies

Fifteen charges have been laid against a man after three people were robbed within hours of each other on the streets of Toronto.

Police say a 19-year-old man suffered injuries to his face when his money and iPod were stolen by a knife-wielding man early Tuesday.

About 90 minutes later, a 24-year-old man was approached by a man with a knife who demanded a cigarette and tried to assault him, but the victim got away.

Later that morning, police say a 38-year-old woman was waiting for a streetcar when a man with a knife grabbed her arm, but she managed to get away.

Police say the man chased the woman, who got into a taxi while the man stood outside the locked cab holding the knife.

Matthew Dawson, 37, of no fixed address, faces a slew of charges including robbery, forcible confinement and assault with a weapon.

Mayoral race

In the Oct. 6 Metro, mayoralty candidate Mark State's response to a question from the Toronto Community Foundation was edited.

The question was, "What is your vision for Toronto under your leadership?"

State's original response: "Future Torontonians appreciate the legacy of thoughtful planning we have given them more than had we left a legacy of hodgepodge development and increased infrastructure."

FOOD BANK CALLS ON CITY TO 'DIG DEEP'

With only two weeks left in this season's food drive, a food bank in northern Toronto is falling short of its target of 75,000 pounds of food.

"We're calling on Torontonians to dig deep this fall," said Anette Chawla, North York Harvest's executive director. "At this point in the food drive, we're short by about 3,000 pounds, compared to last fall — and the need is still there."

The food bank covers one-third of the GTA and has distributed more than 100,000 bags of food to families and communities in 2010. The need remains at historically high levels — approximately 10 per cent higher compared to 2008.

One of Toronto's largest food banks, North York Harvest provides food assistance and support to 60 programs, including neighbourhood food banks, pre- and post-natal programs, women's shelters, community gardens and community kitchens. More than 90 per cent of its support comes from individuals, companies and community groups — and food drives are a critical part of fundraising.

Get involved

- Donations of non-perishable, nutritious food (such as whole-grain products, baby food, canned fish and cooking oil) can be dropped off at major supermarkets or fire halls, — or by calling North York Harvest at 416-635-7771.
- Families can take part in a food sort, organizing donated food for communities in need. The sort will take place Sunday between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. at North York Harvest.

Province scraps Oakville plant

TransCanada, which was given a 20-year contract to build and operate the plant, has been in negotiations to address residents' concerns

Opposition parties are accusing the provincial government of playing politics by backing off plans to build a natural gas plant in Oakville amid intense opposition from area residents.

People who live near the site of the proposed gas plant warn it's much too close to homes and schools.

Local opponents rallied at the Ontario legislature and brought in famed American environmentalist Erin Brockovich to help generate publicity for their fight with the government. Brockovich, who usually is paid about $25,000 per speech, suggested last week to residents that they telephone politicians to push for change.

Oakville Liberal Kevin Flynn even battled his own government's plan for the gas plant, which the province said was necessary to meet electricity demand.

However, Energy Minister Brad Duguid said Thursday the government has had a change of heart regarding the Oakville gas plant. Duguid said there were higher demand projections for electricity in the area when the plant was proposed four years ago, but officials have now determined they no longer need the plant.

Both the NDP and Progressive Conservatives say they believe the Liberals pulled the plug on the plant when they realized it could cost them a seat.

"It seems pretty clear that the decision they're making is not based on the analysis that they've been pushing for ages," said New Democrat Peter Tabuns.

"For ages they've said, 'We need this plant,' but I think they've done polling and I think they see themselves as in trouble in Oakville." THE CANADIAN PRESS

CARLOS OSORIO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Energy Minister Brad Duguid, left, and MPP Kevin Flynn announce Thursday the Liberal government has scrapped controversial plans for a gas-fired power plant in Oakville.

Locals' concerns

Oakville residents have been battling the 975-megawatt plant for a year.

- They say 11,000 homes and 16 schools would be within three kilometres of the facility.
- Residents fear an accidental explosion at the site, located near railway lines and major roads, could be devastating.

Peel officer charged

A 20-year veteran of the Peel police service is facing perjury charges.

Const. Warren Williams was charged Thursday with perjury, and three counts each of obstructing justice and breach of trust. Police say the charges stem from an RCMP drug investigation.

Ex-mayor tapped to head panel

Proposed group would listen to residents: Smitherman John Sewell was mayor from 1978 to 1980

Former Toronto mayor John Sewell has agreed to head a municipal "government reform" panel if George Smitherman is elected mayor Oct. 25.

An announcement made Thursday morning outside the York Civic Centre named Sewell to head a seven-member panel that would release recommendations by next April.

Smitherman said voters have become disconnected from municipal government since the amalgamated city was formed, saying "it's now harder for citizens to connect with their government."

Minister had lobby links: NDP

After uncovering that some hospitals, colleges and universities used public funds to lobby the government, the provincial NDP revealed Thursday that Infrastructure Minister Bob Chiarelli was also a paid lobbyist before he won an Ottawa seat last March.

According to the provincial registry, Chiarelli lobbied the government on behalf of Ottawa's Algonquin College from March 2007 until this year.

But the longtime Liberal insists he did nothing wrong, acted "in good faith" and severed his job ties with Algonquin "well before" he was elected.

Did Ford deny funds to centre?

The Toronto Star is putting campaign claims to the smell test.

In a new radio spot, Joe Pantalone says Rob Ford voted against funding hundreds of community groups, including the Toronto Rape Crisis Centre.

In April, Ford put forward a motion to reduce funding to the Community Partnership and Investment Program by 10 per cent. The CPIP distributes funds to 226 community groups, including the Toronto Rape Crisis Centre. The motion failed.

Ford didn't vote to "deny" funding to the groups Pantalone names, but he did try to reduce their funding. None of those votes was aimed at the Toronto Rape Crisis Centre or any other group specifically.

Verdict: Unscented

Disgraced colonel to plead guilty

Russell Williams facing two counts of first-degree murder, two counts of sexual assault and a number of break and enters

STEVE RUSSELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Russell Williams, former base commander at CFB Trenton, leaves court under police protection.

A former rising star in the Canadian military plans to plead guilty to two murders and 86 other charges, a development Thursday that left one victim's family desperate for answers from Col. Russell Williams.

Williams intends to plead guilty Oct. 18 to two counts of first-degree murder, two sexual assaults and scores of break and enters, his lawyer told Ontario Superior Court.

Dressed in a dark suit and a rumpled white open-collar shirt, Williams hung his head low through the proceedings and showed little emotion.

The military was rocked to its core in February when Williams — then commander of CFB Trenton — was charged in the deaths of Jessica Lloyd, 27, and Cpl. Marie-France Comeau, 38.

Then, in April, Williams was hit with 82 break-and-enter charges, some of which involved lingerie.

Lloyd's brother said he doesn't want an apology, just the truth.

"Why, why her? How did all this come about? There are so many questions everybody wants to ask," Andy Lloyd said outside court.

"I think everybody would like to hear him explain what happened. I'm not looking for an apology. It's not going to hold its weight in anything."

SUNDAY A PERFECT 10 FOR WEDDINGS

It's all about the perfect 10 for brides and grooms who have gone to great lengths to secure the most coveted date on the nuptial calendar this year.

Tying the knot on the 10th day of the 10th month of the millennium's 10th year means plans must be made years in advance.

But it's not all about superstition, some say.

"It was really a cool number, the way the 10-10-10 looks, having it on the invitations, having it on everything, and from what we've learned, having 1 and 0 means the beginning and the end," said Caroline Dixon, 30, of Toronto. She is set to wed Sunday.

Numerologists call the date "magical" and Chinese wedding planners call it "lucky."

In Toronto, the city hall wedding chamber — normally closed Sunday — had such a high demand for the day it decided to open in a different venue, across the street at a hotel.

Privacy breach not the first

A privacy breach involving a veteran that has been "embarrassing" the Conservative government may be just the tip of the iceberg as the country's privacy watchdog says she has received other complaints from injured soldiers.

Jennifer Stoddart wouldn't say how many potential new cases have come forward, but promised to review the evidence and launch further investigations if the allegations are founded.

"They're just at the preliminary stage," she said in an interview Thursday.

"We're just starting to look at them and I can't talk about what their allegations may be."

But she said Veterans Affairs broke the law by failing to protect the personal information of retired intelligence officer Sean Bruyea.

Stoddart released the findings Thursday of her year-long investigation into a complaint from Bruyea, whose medical and financial information ended up in briefing notes to a federal cabinet minister on two occasions.

"What we found in this case was alarming," Stoddart said.

"The veteran's sensitive medical and personal information was shared — seemingly with no controls."

10 months later reno probe still under wraps

Prime Minister Stephen Harper says there's no evidence of Conservative wrongdoing and no one is under investigation

An investigation into a big government renovation contract has yet to be made public — 10 months after the Harper government promised the results would be posted online.

Last December, an opposition MP asked Conservative cabinet minister Christian Paradis about an "investigation that is currently underway within his department."

Paradis, who was Public Works minister at the time, accused the Liberals of "making up all kinds of stories and allegations" before answering.

The Mounties have confirmed they are looking into the relationship between Montreal company LM Sauve and Gilles Varin, a longtime Conservative supporter.

LM Sauve won the West Block contract in May 2008, and filed for bankruptcy a year later.

Company owner Paul Sauve says he hired Varin, a Tory supporter who has a criminal record, to help win the contract from the Public Works Department, and paid him $140,000 from 2007 to 2009.

There are strong links between Sauve, Varin and the Tories.

Sauve has said he helped with a fundraiser for the Conservatives in the Montreal-area riding of Bourassa in January 2009 — just months after winning the contract from Public Works.

Sauve has been linked to the Hells Angels biker gang. Last year, Quebec newspaper La Presse quoted him as saying he hired a known member of the Hells Angels' Trois-Rivieres chapter to smooth out relations within Montreal's construction industry.

In 1977, Varin was fined $6,000 after a Quebec court convicted him on five counts of corruption and breach of trust for his role in several kickback schemes.

Contradiction

Montreal businessman Paul Sauve, who is at the heart of a government contract scandal, is contradicting a Conservative cabinet minister's claim that they didn't discuss the deal.

- Natural Resources Minister Christian Paradis said Wednesday that he never talked with Paul Sauve about the contract during a Tory fundraiser in 2009.
- But Sauve told The Canadian Press Thursday that the pair did discuss the contract at the fundraiser — and that Paradis actually congratulated him on it.

FRANCE

Veil ban clears another hurdle

France's constitutional watchdog endorsed a divisive law Thursday forbidding face-covering Islamic veils anywhere in public, but expressed concern about applying it in places of worship such as a mosque. The decision of the constitutional council removes a key hurdle for the law, overwhelmingly approved in both houses of parliament last month, despite concerns from some Muslims that it will further stigmatize France's No. 2 religion.

The law, the first of its kind in Europe, forbids veils such as the niqab or burqa anywhere in public and imposes a fine of around $210 on anyone wearing one, and a $42,000 fine on anyone who forces a woman to wear one.

Toxic sludge hits famed Danube River

BELA SZANDELSZKY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ A rescuer searches for missing bodies Thursday near the village of Kolontar, Hungary, possibly washed away by flooding toxic mud.

Acidic waste from Hungarian reservoir has killed four, wiped out fish population in other river

The toxic red sludge that burst out of a Hungarian factory's reservoir reached the mighty Danube Thursday after wreaking havoc on smaller rivers and creeks, and downstream nations rushed to test their waters.

The European Union and environmental officials fear an environmental catastrophe affecting half a dozen nations if the red sludge, a waste product of making aluminum, contaminates the Danube, Europe's second-longest river.

Officials from Croatia, Serbia and Romania were taking river samples every few hours Thursday but hoping the Danube's huge water volume would blunt the impact of the spill.

The Hungarian reservoir break Monday disgorged a toxic torrent through three villages and creeks that flow into waterways connected to the Danube. Creeks in Kolontar, the western village closest to the spill site, were still swollen and ochre red days later and villagers said they were devoid of fish.

The red sludge reached the western branch of the Danube early Thursday and its broad, main stretch by noon, Hungarian rescue agency spokesman Tibor Dobson told the state MTI news agency.

Dobson said the pH content of the red sludge entering the Danube had dropped and was unlikely to cause further environmental damage. It had been tested earlier at a pH level of 13 and now was down under 10, and no dead fish had been spotted in the Danube, he said.

The Hungarian Academy of Science said sludge samples taken two days ago showed the muck's heavy metal concentrations do "not come close" to levels considered dangerous to the environment. But the academy said Thursday it still considered the sludge dangerous — apparently due to its caustic characteristics.

'Extinguished'

▶ "Life in the Marcal River has been extinguished," Hungarian rescue official Tibor Dobson said, referring to the river's 40-kilometre stretch that carried the red waste from Kolontar into the Raba River and onto the Danube.

Prenatal privacy not an issue

Canadian moms appear to have few qualms about posting their prenatal sonogram online.

So says a study commissioned by security software maker AVG, which surveyed 2,200 mothers in Canada, the U.S., the U.K., and several other countries.

The study suggests 81 per cent of today's kids have some kind of digital presence online before they turn two.

The survey also found Canadian moms were the least concerned about future privacy issues when posting information about their children online.

On a scale of one to five, with five being very concerned, Canadian moms had an average response of 3.1.

The global average was 3.5 and Spanish moms showed the most concern with an average response of 3.9.

81 per cent of today's kids who have some kind of digital presence online before they turn two, according to the study by AVG.

Almost one in four kids had a copy of their prenatal sonogram posted online.

Thirty-seven per cent of the Canadian mothers surveyed posted the image online, compared to only 13 to 15 per cent of the parents from France, Germany, Italy and Japan.

The report was released to coincide with a new release of AVG's online security software.

Yoga defies Christian faith: Baptist leader

Albert Mohler says in an online essay there are contradictions between Christianity and yoga

ED REINKE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Stephanie Dillion, a yoga instructor in Louisville, Ky., says yoga has brought her closer to her Christian faith.

A Southern Baptist leader who is calling for Christians to avoid yoga and its spiritual attachments is getting plenty of pushback from enthusiasts who defend the ancient practice.

Southern Baptist Seminary president Albert Mohler says the stretching and meditative discipline derived from Eastern religions is not a Christian pathway to God.

Mohler said he objects to "the idea that the body is a vehicle for reaching consciousness with the divine."

Mohler argued in his online essay last month that Christians who practise yoga "must either deny the reality of what yoga represents or fail to see the contradictions between their Christian commitments and their embrace of yoga."

Mohler wrote the essay after reading The Subtle Body, in which author Stefanie Syman traces the history of yoga in America. Syman noted the growing popularity of yoga in the U.S. by pointing out that first lady Michelle Obama has added it to the festivities at the annual White House Easter Egg Roll on the front lawn.

Mohler said many people have written him to say they're simply doing exercises and forgoing yoga's eastern mysticism and meditation.

"My response to that would be simple and straightforward: You're just not doing yoga," Mohler said.

He said his view is "not an eccentric Christian position."

Other Christian leaders have said practising yoga is incompatible with the teachings of Jesus.

Pat Robertson has called the chanting and other spiritual components that go along with yoga "really spooky." California megachurch pastor John MacArthur called yoga a "false religion."

Muslim clerics have banned Muslims from practising yoga in Egypt, Malaysia and Indonesia, citing similar concerns.

Yoga proponents say the wide-ranging discipline, which originated in India, offers physical and mental healing through stretching poses and concentration.

And some yoga studios have made the techniques more palatable for Christians by removing the chanting and associations to eastern religions, namely Hinduism and its multiple deities.

Pakistan. Impasse

Despite apologies, blockade stays

Pakistan said Thursday it has not decided when to reopen a key border crossing NATO uses to ship supplies to Afghanistan, despite a U.S. apology for a helicopter attack that killed two Pakistani soldiers. Suspected militants have taken advantage of the impasse to attack stranded or rerouted trucks.

Jobs to influence interest rate

Sluggish growth

The Bank of Canada's policy rate is currently at one per cent, after three quarter-point hikes from an all-time low of 0.25 per cent.

- Canada's economy showed remarkable growth the last three months of 2009 and first quarter of this year but the pace has slowed since then.
- Exports have sagged because of a weak recovery in the United States.

If analysts are even close to being right about how many jobs the economy created in September, the Bank of Canada's push to raise interest rates this summer will go into hibernation for the winter.

There is an unusually solid consensus among economists that about 10,000 jobs were added in September.

BMO Capital Markets economist Douglas Porter says that's not even enough to absorb the rise in the number of people entering Canada's labour force each month.

As a result, the Statistics Canada monthly jobs report to be released Friday may show the unemployment rate flat at 8.1 per cent or rising slightly in August.

That Statistics Canada report on September employment will be considered by the Bank of Canada as it assesses whether to raise interest rates at its Oct. 19 meeting.

Analysts say the central bank will find it hard to justify another rate increase. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woman makes costly error

EYE CARE. A woman accidentally glued an eye shut when she mistook super glue for her eye drops.

KSAZ-TV said Irmgard Holm of Glendale, Ariz., had cataract surgery a year ago. She was reaching for what she thought was one of her half-dozen eye drop medications. The burning sensation told her immediately something was seriously wrong.

Holm said the eye drops and the super glue bottles are nearly identical.

Timmins to hold vigil

CHILEAN MINERS. The city of Timmins is planning a candlelight vigil for the 33 miners who have waited for two months to be rescued in Chile.

Timmins Mayor Tom Laughren said as a mining community it's important to show support for the miners, who have been trapped since Aug. 5, and the rescuers.

Robert Calhoun, president of the Miners Memorial Committee, said Timmins has had its share of mine accidents in the past.

Celebrity canine a credit to his breed

Once a champion show dog, Rufus, a 10-year-old bull terrier, now brings joy into the lives of the sick

Rufus is the most decorated bull terrier in the history of the breed, a celebrity ambassador and one of the busiest therapy dogs in the United States.

Rufus is a coloured bull terrier with a head like an egg and a body like a torpedo, explained David Frei, director of communications for the Westminster Kennel Club.

Owner Barbara Bishop of Holmdel, N.J., rejects words like ugly and weird, settling on different to describe Rufus. His sad look, funny eyes and big nose draw people in, she said.

At hospitals or cancer centres like the Ronald McDonald House in New York City, "people think he's stuffed. He just lays there buried under 20 kids. People can't believe he is so used to it," Bishop said.

▶ Rufus at Sardi's restaurant in New York City.

The Bishops retired Rufus as a show dog, but he was too social to sit at home, so he now works for Therapy Dog International and Angel on a Leash, an organization founded by Frei.

Frei believes Rufus' biggest impact has been on the breed itself. Rufus, who has been mistaken for a pit bull a time or two, belongs to one of those breeds sometimes singled out and banned. "It's a gentle loving breed and should not be discriminated against," Frei said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rufus' resumé

Rufus, whose registered name is Rocky Top's Sundance Kid, started his show career when he was 11 months old.

- A champion. In 2005 and 2006, Rufus won the triple crown of U.S. dog shows: The National Dog Show Presented by Purina; the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show; and the Morris & Essex Kennel Club show, which is held only once every five years.
- A natural. The same things that made Rufus a good show dog make him a good therapy dog and a good pet, says David Frei of the Westminster Kennel Club. "He's a big, beautiful, burly dog that loves everybody," he said.

U.S. security grounds flight

One of the 102 passengers on the plane said travellers were told 'there was a TSA security breach'

Transportation security officials removed passengers from a Bermuda-bound flight Thursday at Philadelphia International Airport after reports that someone was helping to load the plane without a security badge.

More than 100 passengers were taken off packed US Airways Flight 1070 after what airport officials called a security concern raised by the airline.

Authorities were sweeping the aircraft for any dangerous items, said Greg Soule, a spokesman for the Transportation Security Administration.

The Airbus 319 was sitting in an isolated area far from the airport terminal and surrounded by emergency vehicles with lights flashing.

Security dogs moved from bag to bag among luggage spread on the ground near the jet.

Philadelphia police said initial reports indicated the person helping to load the plane was dressed in an airline uniform. The person's whereabouts were unclear.

Cost of NYC transit goes up thrice in three years

Board approves fare hikes that are to take effect next year Another increase expected in 2013

The cost of riding New York City's subways, buses and commuter rails is going up again, the third fare increase in three years.

The Metropolitan Transportation Authority board approved fare hikes Thursday, following increases in 2008 and 2009. The new rates are to take effect early next year. Another price increase is expected in 2013.

$800M
The amount of New York City's Metropolitan Transit Authority's budget gap.

A single ride ticket will rise to $2.50 from the current $2.25, but the old fare will remain unchanged on multiple use Metrocards.

The price of monthly unlimited Metrocards, currently $89, will rise by $15.

The fare increases by the largest U.S. transit agency are the latest attempt to close an $800-million budget gap. They would hit commuters across the region, from those riding city trains and buses to those taking the suburban commuter railroads. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

She lived as the Titanic died

Woman's gripping first-hand account set for auction ◗ She tells of screams, chilling cries for help, prayers

She heard a terrible rumbling noise, then anguished cries for help as her rowboat pulled away from the sinking ocean liner Titanic that dreadful night in 1912.

Now, Laura Francatelli's first-person account of the disaster, in the form of a signed affidavit given to a British board of inquiry, is set to be auctioned.

It is a gripping first-hand account of how she and her two prominent employers — Sir Cosmo Duff-Gordon and his socialite wife, Lady Lucy Duff-Gordon — managed to survive, fleeing in a rowboat with a capacity for 40 people even though they only had 12 on board.

"This affidavit goes into strong details," said Andrew Aldridge, an auctioneer at Britain's Henry Aldridge & Son, which will sell the affidavit Oct. 16.

"It talks about Lady Duff being sick the whole time, about the lifeboat bobbing up and down, about the screams."

Sir Cosmo and Lady Duff "were two of the most controversial survivors," he said.

Some say Sir Cosmo paid crewmen to get him away from the sinking vessel without returning to help those drowning.

Disaster at sea

Laura Francatelli was 31 when the Titanic struck an iceberg April 14, 1912. She died in 1967. Here, she describes watching from a rowboat as the Titanic went down:

"There was an awful rumbling when she went. Then came the screams and cries ... We had hardly any talk. The men spoke about God and prayers and wives. We were all in the darkness."

HUMAN SMUGGLING

Nine detained from ship

Nine foreign nationals were detained after being intercepted, allegedly without any official papers and stowed away on a ship that arrived from Casablanca, Morocco, Thursday.

The raid came on the same day Prime Minister Stephen Harper reiterated a promise to introduce immigration measures this winter that would crack down on human smuggling.

He said the government would be coming forward after the parliamentary winter break with "comprehensive" legislation designed to deter human smuggling.

A spokeswoman for the Canada Border Services Agency said the passengers were in good health when they were picked up at the Port of Montreal.

"They are being detained because we are not certain of their identity," Jacqueline Roby said.

Roby said the nine were being detained because it's alleged they violated the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act. They face an immigration hearing within 48 hours.

Talk of a new party has Quebec buzzing

JACQUES BOISSINOT/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Right-of-centre party is often discussed but never successful

The Quebec legislature was full of rumours Thursday about a new right-of-centre party that would be pro-business and ambivalent on the national question.

The Charest Liberals were greeting reports about the new party with glee — while the Parti Québécois were sounding more dismissive.

That's because the names being associated with it so far — Francois Legault and Joseph Facal — are former Parti Québécois cabinet ministers.

But some PQ party members warn the new party would ultimately hurt Charest's party because, if it indeed shelves talk of independence, it will eat into the Liberals' federalist votes.

Man puts off vital heart surgery — to watch a vital football game

A 69-year-old Detroit man has put off surgery to insert a pacemaker in his chest so he can watch a U.S. college football game on TV this weekend.

Major Hester deferred the procedure scheduled for Thursday until next week, after Saturday's big showdown between No. 18 Michigan and No. 17 Michigan State.

The retired office supply clerk is a devout Spartans fan. He said he can't risk something going wrong on the operating table that would prevent him seeing the game.

"You never know," Hester said. "It's like going into combat. You may come home alive or you may come home dead."

Hester said he's willing to take the risk of putting off the surgery.

"Whatever happens, I want to see the game," he said.

Hats off to bidder who paid $3M for helmet

A rare Roman helmet found in a field in Cumbria has been sold by a London auction house for about $3.6 million — about eight times more than expected.

The nearly 2,000-year-old cavalry parade helmet is one of only three that have been found. The other two are in British museums.

The helmet was sold Thursday in London with six serious bidders pushing the price far higher than predicted.

The winning bidder remains anonymous.

20 An unnamed man in his 20s with a metal detector is said to be the finder of the rare Roman helmet. Now there are fears the winning bidder lives outside Britain and the artifact will leave the country

The helmet was found in May by a young man using a metal detector.

The find is not covered by England's treasure law, which would have given British museums a special claim to the helmet.

Experts described the find as an "extraordinary example of Roman metalwork at its zenith" and "the discovery of a lifetime" for a metal detectorist.

Census bid inflames Tories, too

Some threaten to switch votes

Rash. Ridiculous. Crazy.

Newly obtained emails show the PM got a digital earful from angry Canadians opposed to his plan to scrap the mandatory long-form census.

Among them were messages sent by Conservative supporters prepared to switch votes.

A Canadian Press analysis shows more than four-fifths of 293 email messages to Harper during a single week last summer were critical of the change.

The Liberals released a letter Thursday showing that one of the Tory government's biggest critics of the mandatory long form vigorously defended it during the last census.

Maxime Bernier, industry minister during the 2006 census process, has said he received an average of 1,000 emails a day against the long form that year. But at the time, Bernier called the census essential to government.

Bernier said Thursday he has had time since 2006 to reflect on the long-form census, and strongly believes what his government is doing is right.

Is stability coming to the Ivory Coast? Distribution of electoral cards was underway Thursday ahead of elections scheduled for Oct. 31. Halifax ponders new deal on centre

25 The NDP government says the new centre would cost about $327 million over 25 years — a figure criticized by some as too costly. Provincial officials also revealed the proposal would require an added $46.7 million from Ottawa.

The Nova Scotia government says it might sell an aging convention centre to the Halifax Regional Municipality to offset the cost of building a new one in the city's downtown.

Premier Darrell Dexter insisted again Thursday that his cabinet has not made a decision on whether to proceed with a proposal to build the $327-million complex.

But he revealed he has approached the mayor to discuss the possibility that the municipality buy the old meeting facility in the downtown core.

"I have suggested to him that the City of Halifax may wish to purchase that building," Dexter told reporters.

"We know it has a fair market value and we're willing to look at its continued operation until a new centre is brought on."

▶ Some 200 people rally Thursday on the fourth anniversary of the killing of Anna Politkovskaya, calling on the authorities to find and punish the killers of journalists and human rights activists in Russia.

Pushing Putin's pin-up image

18 journalists have been murdered in Russia since Putin came to power: Committee to Protect Journalists

Under Vladimir Putin's 58th birthday takes its inspiration from the Kremlin-driven campaign to boost Putin's popularity and cultivate his alpha-male image. It was released by the pro-Kremlin youth group Nashi.

A separate group of journalism students quickly created a quite different calendar online, comprised of pictures of themselves wearing black and with their mouths taped shut to protest Putin's policies.

"Who killed Anna Politkovskaya?" asked one, referring to the investigative reporter who was shot four years ago to the day.

Opposition leader Garry Kasparov said the pin-up calendar was created by the kind of journalists who sell out to the Kremlin.

"Authorities promote journalists of this kind and kill the honest ones," he said at a rally.

Politkovskaya was a harsh critic of the Kremlin and exposed widespread human rights abuses and corruption in Chechnya.

South American writer awarded Nobel Prize

Llosa says winning gives recognition to a profession that makes him feel like 'a citizen of the world'

SETH WENIG/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Mario Vargas Llosa

Peruvian Mario Vargas Llosa won the 2010 Nobel Prize in literature Thursday as the academy honoured one of the Spanish-speaking world's most acclaimed authors and an outspoken political activist who once ran for president in his tumultuous homeland.

Vargas Llosa is the first South American winner of the prestigious 10 million kronor ($1.5 million) Nobel Prize in literature since Colombian writer Gabriel Garcia Marquez won in 1982.

His writing is almost universally admired in Latin America but his gradual shift from the left toward an embrace of free-market capitalism has put him at odds with much of the hemisphere's intellectual elite.

Vargas Llosa has feuded with Venezuela's leftist President Hugo Chavez and often tosses barbs at Cuba's Fidel Castro.

"I am very surprised, I did not expect this," Vargas Llosa told Spanish National Radio, adding he thought it was a joke when he received the call.

"It had been years since my name was even mentioned," he added. "It has certainly been a total surprise, a very pleasant surprise, but a surprise nonetheless."

The Swedish Academy said it honoured him for mapping the "structures of power and (for) his trenchant images of the individual's resistance, revolt and defeat."

Strike looms despite deal

The vast majority of workers at Loblaw-owned stores in Ontario have ratified a five-year labour contract with Canada's largest grocery company, but a small cluster of stores in the province face a strike by one of the union's locals Friday.

The United Food and Commercial Workers union represents a total of about 30,000 Loblaw employees in the province, but Friday's strike would only affect 1,700 members of UFCW Local 175/633 at nine Zehr's and Real Canadian stores in Essex, Kent and Lambton counties.

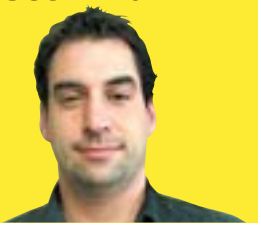
DAVID DESCÔTEAUX



Savings, not consumer credit, will save us.

Halloween is just around the corner. Here's a scary thought to put you in the mood: The Canadian economy could collapse any day.

So far, our economy has survived the financial crisis thanks to our housing bubble. The construction boom fuelled spending on building materials, appliances, furniture, electronics and more. But the bubble is deflating. And more people are losing their jobs every day.

South of the border, house prices continue to collapse. Over-indebted Americans will need years to clean up their balance sheets. As of now, 41 million of them survive on food stamps, and thousands more join their ranks every day. Canadian exporters will share their pain.

Are we prepared for a severe recession? No. Most of us are walking a financial tightrope. Canadians are struggling under record levels of debt — 145 per cent of disposable income. Carrying $50,000 on four cards and three lines of credit is the new normal. We're living paycheque to paycheque. Six in 10 Canadians say they would be in trouble if their paycheques were late. Imagine if they lost their jobs.

Who's to blame? We are, of course. But so is the Bank of Canada, which has kept interest rates artificially close to zero for about three years now. When interest rates are low, we borrow to buy a house or a second car. Save? What for, when a certificate of deposit earns just one per cent?

This was our government's brilliant plan to get us out of recession: Entice people to shop till they drop. Two years ago, I was called crazy for advocating tax cuts instead of "stimulus" packages. "People will pay down their debt instead of spending!" Saving is wrong, I was told.

"Who's to blame? We are, of course. But so is the Bank of Canada. When interest rates are low, we borrow to buy a house or a second car. Save? What for, when a certificate of deposit earns just one per cent?"

How did that work out for us, other than making us more vulnerable than ever?

The road to a real recovery goes through savings, not consumer credit. The Central Bank must stop this little game and let interest rates rise. This will hurt the economy in the short run, but it's the path we have to follow. If we delay the natural adjustment of the economy any longer, we will end up paying a much heavier price.

We face a simple choice — just as we did two years ago: Lots of pain now, or severe suffering later. Unfortunately, it's human nature to postpone hard choices. And in this, as in many things, politicians are all too human.

▶ Jane Dayus-Hinch's Wedding Wall Planner is available at www.janedayus-hinch.com/.

5 MINUTES WITH: JANE DAYUS-HINCH

Pay attention, brides. The unflappable Wedding S.O.S. host wants to make sure you're well-prepared for the best day of your life.

You've just come out with a Wedding Wall Planner. Can you explain how it works?
The Wedding Wall Planner is exactly the same as the one I use in the show. It's a write-on/wipe-off board you can put up on the kitchen wall and it has 160 headings that peel up. I'm trying to get brides away from this bride file, where they get bits of paper and lists, which they keep sticking in a file.

You've said you can predict the longevity of a marriage based on how a couple picks out their invitations.
It's always very interesting to me if the bride just shows up on her own because the bridegroom's not interested, or the two of them sit there and she's texting, you can see what that marriage is going to be. Or if she's saying, we're having this, whether you like it or not, and if he's going, how much is it? You get a balance of what that relationship is. And sometimes you get a sense that this will never work.

What are some of the signs that it will work?
When they say to each other, what do you think? What do you feel? And you're getting a sense that they put the other person first.

You've done weddings all over the world, but you film your show here in Canada. Have you noticed anything culturally distinct about Canadian brides?
There is a wonderful sense of it will all come together, and what will be, will be. Sometimes I like to raise the bar. And also, it was the first time I ever had a wedding where they wore shorts and flip-flops.

You've seen some real bridezillas (and groomzillas). What should these men and women be aware of in regards to their behaviour?
I think where it comes from is everybody's so busy. Life gets in the way and suddenly they're trying to pull this huge day together. And people let you down. So now it all magnifies and you can't take any more because there's no one to offload it on to. Bridezillas? No. If they're divas it's a totally different ball game.

Worth mentioning

An Italian mother whose anguish over her missing daughter gripped the nation for weeks was told on live TV that the teenager had been slain, allegedly by the girl's uncle, in the house the show was being hosted in.

Concetta Serrano, looking like she was in shock, murmured, "my brother-in-law is innocent," and "I can't believe it," as she sat in the dining room of the uncle's house.

The TV anchor of a popular show about missing person cases on RAI state TV told her late Wednesday night the breaking news that "one of the persons" being interrogated by police in Taranto, Italy, had allegedly confessed to killing Sarah Scazzi, 15, and the body had been found.

While much of the nation watched, calls were made to the cellphone of the uncle, Michele Misseri, who, along with his wife, Serrano's sister, had been interrogated for hours and was still being questioned.

Misseri didn't answer. At one point someone telephoned the mother, who went pale.

Taranto prosecutor Franco Sebastio and police officials said Misseri had confessed he had killed Sarah shortly after she disappeared Aug. 26. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Metro Minute at Ireland Park

Have some time to kill before your Porter flight to Ottawa? Perfect. You're just around the corner from a bit of underappreciated culture. Ireland Park officially opened three summers ago to commemorate the tens of thousands of Irish men, women and children who fled the Great Famine in 1847, and arrived at the shores of Lake Ontario. Sitting at the foot of Bathurst Street, the park features five bronze sculptures by Irish artist Rowan Gillespie and is meant to mirror a twin famine memorial in Dublin. A wall of imported limestone from Kilkenny displays the names of many who did not live to rebuild their lives in a new land. JORDANA DIVON

PROBLEM WITH CONVENTIONAL TANK-TYPE WATER HEATER

Thermal Heat Loss
20-40% of energy consumed by a traditional tank heater is wasted as heat is slowly lost due to radiant heat loss from the storage tank.

Limited Supply
Conventional water heaters frequently run out of hot water after several back-to-back demands and often after only one shower or demand. The user must then wait for a long period of time for the heater to "refresh"

Overheating
To ensure a traditional heater refreshes at a reasonable rate, most heaters are set at very high temperatures (130F+). This wastes energy and increases risk of scalding, especially for children and the elderly.

Hard Water Minerals
Hard water scale forms most readily when water is heated for extended periods. Hard water scale quickly coats the internal components causing a loss of efficiency and shorter life, and often leaks.

Short Life / Disposal
Conventional water heaters typically last from 6 to 12 years in most residential applications. They are bulky and take up a huge amount of landfill space and are costly to recycle.

Bulky Size
Due to their large storage tanks, conventional water heaters are bulky and take up lots of space.

THE TANKLESS WATER HEATER SOLUTION

Reduce water heating costs as much as 50%! - Tankless water heaters heat entirely on demand only when hot water is needed. Since there is no hot water storage, thermal heat loss is almost completely eliminated.
Tankless heaters never run out of hot water - they can literally run all day long if necessary and they will never stop producing hot water since they heat water instantly on demand.
Sophisticated tankless heaters allow you to set the ongoing water temperature to a much more reasonable and safer temperature, closer to the actual temperature you will use the water at, thereby reducing risk of scalding. According to the US. Department of Energy, for each 10F reduction in water temperature, you can save between 3%-5% in energy costs.
Since hot water is not stored, tankless water heaters generally handle hard water minerals and sediments much better than conventional tanks. This makes them far less likely to leak or rupture, and able to maintain efficiency throughout their whole lifecycle. Accordingly, many have much longer warranties.
Tankless water heaters can last more than 20 years.
Tankless water heaters are about the size of a briefcase (electric units) - they save valuable floor space that can be used for storage etc. especially in condos and apartments.

▶ Hilary Swank and Sam Rockwell star in Conviction.

Connection plays role in Conviction

◗ Movie's moral stance holds an emotional connection with audience ◗ Swank and Rockwell's mutual admiration bolstered on-screen chemistry

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

When Hilary Swank and Sam Rockwell first got together to begin filming the drama Conviction, they bonded over one simple attribute.

"We're acting nerds," said Rockwell during a recent interview. "We got together and were just riffing and playing ball. It was a lot of fun."

Fun may not be the most accurate description for what united the duo, however. Based on a true story, Conviction is about Betty Anne Waters (Swank), a determined mother that enters law school and sacrifices nearly two decades of her life in order to prove the innocence of her incarcerated brother (Rockwell).

"Essentially it's a real love story at its core and I think that's something that everyone is relating to," said Swank. "I don't want to say they're just ordinary people but they are (like others) people have in their lives and its through an extraordinary experience they have to find their way through this maze and together that's all they have."

"People in their lives have had things go awry and so they connect — but on a smaller level, of course."
HILARY SWANK

Indeed, Conviction (in theatres next Friday) is a stirring love story between two siblings but the stars also contend the drama's moral stance also holds an emotional connection with the audience.

"You want to see justice prevail," said Swank.

True Stories

Hilary Swank's best career success has been portraying historical figures. Here are some of Swank's most recognizable "real" roles:

- Boys Don't Cry (1999) Played transgender Brandon Teena; won the Oscar.
- Freedom Writers (2007) Played Erin Gruwell, acclaimed schoolteacher.
- Amelia (2009) Played Amelia Earhart, American aviation pioneer.

The Dame gets a gun

Mirren avoids being typecast by taking on role in Red Makes move from Queen to retired spy

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Helen Mirren in Red

As the posters and commercials for Red prove, there's something about seeing Dame Helen Mirren holding an assault rifle. It's unexpected, to say the least, and that's one of the main reasons the famed British actress signed up for the project, based on Warren Ellis' graphic novel about over-the-hill spies going back to work. (The title stands for "retired, extremely dangerous.")

"The whole idea is to do something different from what you've just done," Mirren explains. "The Queen was an incredible experience for me in terms of the attention the film got, but that sort of attention kind of sticks. And I was getting a bit sick of people saying, 'Oh, you're so regal and you play all these queens.' And I thought, actually I don't play queens. I play lots of different things. For a long time before that, I was a police detective."

So to subvert such royal expectations, she grabbed a gun. Despite her proficiency with weapons on screen, Mirren insists she's not a fan of firearms. "I don't like to ever say a gun is fun," she says. "The guns I found the most horrifying are these small machine guns. They're not funny, they're terrible because you can cause such havoc. Dreadful, dreadful."

Given that Red focuses on agents that have been put out to pasture, the topic of retirement is obviously on Mirren's mind — not that she has any specific plans to pack it in. "As night follows day, inevitably it will happen, but I have no idea," she admits. "I think we all have a dream of what it would be like not to work and grow heirloom tomatoes. And I do have that dream. It would be lovely. I do love gardening and all of that. But I do love my work."

Of course, it's not the actual acting — or the awards and attention — that Mirren would miss if she called it a day. Instead, she explains, it's the interactions with everyone from directors to co-stars to journalists. "In my job and in all the jobs related to my job, you get to meet and work with and be involved with clever, imaginative people who constantly surprise you."

Inspiration

- To play a genial retired spy in Red, Mirren was inspired to base her character on Martha Stewart.
- Stewart combines sweetness with efficiency and a laser-like ability to concentrate, she said.

Four-legged stars steal the screen at the box office

Secretariat is perhaps the most storied horse to be portrayed in the movies But he's not the only one

What do Elizabeth Taylor and Diane Lane have in common? Besides earning the title World's Most Desirable Woman (Lane, officially, in 2004, and Taylor, pretty much all the way through the '60s and '70s), they've both shared the screen with a 1,600-pound leading man.

No, it wasn't Marlon Brando, it was a horse, of course! Both have starred in movies featuring four-legged cast mates — Taylor most famously in National Velvet, Lane in this weekend's Secretariat, the story of racing's most famous thoroughbred.

Secretariat may be the most storied real-life horse to be portrayed in the movies, but he's not the only one.

Remember Phar Lap? The biopic of his life and career — he was the most famous Australian animal athlete of all time, so well known that his heart, preserved at the National Museum of Australia, is their most requested exhibit — was not a hit in North America despite a 100 per cent Rotten Tomatoes rating, but was popular in Australia and New Zealand where the horse is a national treasure.

Faring better at the box office was the inspirational equine movie Seabiscuit, a Depression-era story about a charger that won races and lifted spirits.

Dubbed Three Men and a Horse by one writer, the story of a jockey (Tobey Maguire), a businessman (Jeff Bridges) and a wise old cowboy (Chris Cooper) connected with audiences and sold a hefty 5.5 million copies on DVD. Memorable quote? "The horse is too small, the jockey too big, the trainer too old, and I'm too dumb to know the difference."

More fleet of foot than the racehorse sports movies is the Disney comedy The Horse in the Gray Flannel Suit. Based on the novel The Year of the Horse by Eric Hatch, it mixes Mad Men-style advertising executives, a cute kid and a horse named after a stomach pill with stars Kurt Russell, Dean Jones and Dick Van Dyke Show regular Morey Amsterdam.

Coming around the homestretch are two horse movies starring Hollywood stud Robert Redford. In The Electric Horseman, he's a washed-up rodeo star "just walkin'" around to save funeral expenses." He's a bit on the decrepit side, but Redford did all of his own riding stunts in the film. Redford is back in the saddle in The Horse Whisperer, playing a horse trainer with a special touch. Memorable quote? "Truth is, I help horses with people problems."

I Spit On Your Grave was one of the most shocking titles of the VHS horror era, so the fact the remake has been generating controversy before it has even been released should be no surprise.

Early screenings at film festivals came flooded with reports of how graphic and frightening the film is, leading to the surprising decision to release the film unrated in U.S. theatres. (In Canada, the same version of the film is rated R).

It's rare for a film to hit U.S. screens without a rating these days, but for the grisly I Spit On Your Grave — in theatres next week — it was really the only option. Like the original, the film deliberately pushes buttons and boundaries. "I think that if we don't push the envelope as filmmakers, we might as well just pack it in and direct romantic comedies all of the time," said Monroe.

▶ The original of I Spit on Your Grave was released in1978.

Hard to shake

Actress Sarah Butler on watching herself in the film:

"The first time I screened it, it was at a private screening for me and my reps. I had a really difficult time. I cried lot and it was really tough. I kind of needed a break about halfway through to shake it off a bit ... It's not as tough to watch now, but it's definitely affecting."

"This is what art forms are for, to force people to think, to question, to feel things, or see and understand things that they otherwise wouldn't."

"I first saw (the original) in 1980. It had a two day run in theatres in 1978 and then it went away and came out on VHS in 1980. I saw it then and it stuck with me for a couple of days. I definitely had an on and off funk for a few days. It kept popping into my brain and pushing my buttons."

Even making such a film was difficult to endure, especially for lead actress Sarah Butler. However Butler is quick to admit that the overall experience was worth it.

"There were days where I couldn't break out of the character because I was so terrified that I had to keep crying for about 10 minutes before we could do another take," recalled the actress. "But that's the kind of thing that actors dream of, so it was an honour to play the role."

Secretariat a champ

Secretariat
Genre: Drama
Director: Randall Wallace
Stars: Diane Lane, John Malkovich
●●●½

Secretariat succeeds in one area where most true sports stories stumble: Despite the outcome of the famed horse's run at the triple crown in 1973, director Randall Wallace still manages to infuse his races with tension, suspense and uncertainty.

But as much personality as the horse has — and as thrilling as the race sequences are — the film really belongs to Diane Lane, as Secretariat's owner, Penny Chenery, who defies social and gender conventions to handle raising the horse after her father's death.

Despite being beautifully shot and generally satisfying, with strong performances from Lane and John Malkovich (as ornery Quebecois trainer Lucien Laurin), there are some missteps.

The writing errs on the side of obvious a little too often, with many of Lane's big moments scripted like, well, big moments — like ready-made awards season clips.

And they spend so much time going over the particulars of breeding, training and racing horses that audience members may feel qualified to raise a champion themselves after seeing it.

But despite that and some overt Christianity — Oh Happy Day features prominently — the film is still a champ.

NED EHRBAR

Conjuring chemistry

Life As We Know It
Genre: Romantic Comedy
Director: Greg Berlanti
Stars: Katherine Heigl, Josh Duhamel
●●●

Life As We Know It may not quite be the Movie You Think It Is.

Marketed as a straight-up rom-com, the slight charmer actually plays best as a humanist drama between two opposing personalities making the most of a bad situation.

When their mutual best friends die accidentally, uptight Holly (Katherine Heigl) and easygoing Messer (Josh Duhamel) are made legal guardians of the deceased parents' infant.

A premise that hardly warrants the big-screen, the lead actors pull out all the stops and conjure a chemistry that raises the melodrama above the waterline.

Even amongst the obvious gags about smelly diapers and ceaseless wailing, there lie a few hearty laughs and an impassioned attempt at sincerity.

STEVE GOW

Howl
Genre: Drama
Directors: Rob Epstein, Jeffrey Friedman
Stars: James Franco, Todd Rotondi, Jon Prescott
●●●

Considering the groundbreaking effect Allen Ginsberg's poem Howl had on popular culture, it's too bad the movie chronicling its birth and subsequent obscenity trail is so traditional.

The poem pushed the limits of frank language and style, whereas the film is content to rely on old tropes such as presenting flashbacks in black and white and framing the narrative as a long interview with Ginsberg.

Luckily James Franco plays Ginsberg with a great deal of spirit, bringing him and his "rhythmic articulations" to vivid life.

RICHARD CROUSE

It's Kind Of A Funny Story
Genre: Dark Comedy
Directors: Anna Boden, Ryan Fleck
Stars: Zach Galifianakis, Keir Gilchrist, Emma Roberts
●●●

It's Kind Of A Funny Story should be a dark comedy combining the voices of cult comic Zach Galifianakis and the directors of Half Nelson.

To an extent it is, albeit on the sidelines.

Galifianakis creates a touching and hilarious portrait of a lifelong depressive, but unfortunately the film focuses on a suicidal teen learning how crazy the world is during a week-long stay in a psyche ward.

For what it is, the film works reasonably well, even if there's no denying that a far more interesting movie is going on in the background.

PHIL BROWN

Deliver Us From Evil
Genre: Thriller
Director: Ole Bornedal
Stars: Lene Nystrom
●●●●

Fans of director Sam Peckinpah's horrifying 1971 morality play Straw Dogs won't want to miss this nerve-shredding Danish thriller.

When a local lout mistakenly kills his boss's gentle wife, he hatches a plan to pin the killing on a mentally handicapped man, resulting in a violent chain reaction.

Ole Bornedal (Nightwatch) directs with a sure hand and gets deft performances from his eclectic cast, the likes of which includes Lene Nystrom, former lead singer from '90s techno band Aqua, whose spin on the Susan George role is not to be missed.

CHRIS ALEXANDER

The Concert
Genre: Comic/Drama
Director: Radu Mihaileanu
Stars: Alexei Guskov, Melanie Laurent
●●½

Former Russian conductor Andrei Filipov (Alexei Guskov) has been seeking a comeback and in the comic-drama The Concert he finds one.

When the disgraced maestro-turned-janitor intercepts an invitation for Russia's greatest orchestra to play in Paris, he attempts to reform his old motley gang and pose as the symphony.

While the movie is supported by a sobering backstory, it's the subtlety of the performances (especially Inglourious Basterds' Melanie Laurent as a violin virtuoso) that face the greatest challenge in carrying the relatively conventional comedy and its leaps of logic.

SILENT REBELLION

Sound Check

ALAN CROSS
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

'Tis the time of year when British music fans start looking ahead to the last great event of the year: The Christmas No. 1.

This has been something of a national obsession — successfully ported from what's nothing more than a sales and marketing tool for the music industry — since the NME first started publishing an official singles chart in 1952. People are encouraged to push their favourite to the top of the charts in the buying frenzy before Christmas by buying singles.

Usually, the winner is some mass appeal pop song. Then along came Simon Cowell. Beginning in 2005, there was an unbroken string of Christmas No. 1's from winners of his Idol-like show, The X Factor.

Around this time last year, a couple from Essex said, "Enough is enough." Using nothing more than a Facebook account and the power for social networking, they launched a campaign from their home to push Rage Against the Machine's expletive-laden Killing in the Name to number one to fend off X Factor winner, Joe McElderry.

Their campaign went global, receiving support from everyone from even Paul McCartney. And when the final figures were toted up, damned if the winner wasn't Rage.

So what about Christmas 2010? There's a new Facebook campaign dubbed Cage Against the Machine. The goal is to push a John Cage's 1952 composition entitled 4'33 (read as Four minutes and thirty-three seconds) to the top. This is even a weirder choice than Killing in the Name because Cage's composition is nothing more than four minutes and thirty-three seconds of dead silence.

Cage conceived the piece to get an audience to consider that all sound could, in its own way, be music. The work is performed by a single pianist who sits down in front of piano and does nothing for precisely 4:33. The performance consists of all the other sounds that can be heard as the pianist just sits there.

A number of people have covered the track (Frank Zappa, Sonic Youth and New Waver's techno remix). You can even buy it on iTunes for 99 cents.

I think this is brilliant. Anything that makes Simon Cowell's head explode is fine by me.

SINGER TURNED ACTOR

JT loves his vinyls records

Justin Timberlake says he thinks vinyl records sound better than digitalized tunes.

The 29-year-old pop musician and actor told German newspaper Frankfurter Rundschau yesterday that he loves putting on records featuring oldies from the Beach Boys and early Beatles, claiming they "sound warmer" and "more vintage" than digital versions.

Still, the singer acknowledges that MP3 files are handy for selling his own songs online.

Timberlake currently stars as Napster founder Sean Parker in The Social Network, a biopic about Facebook creator Mark Zuckerberg.

Electronic upstarts reshape punk music

- Abandon All Ships fuses punk and electronica to create bold new sound
- Band coined the slang word 'geeve' and tattooed it to their bodies

KEITH CARMAN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

"We just don't geeve," shrugs Abandon All Ships (AAS) vocalist Angelo Aita.

Slang terminology has long been a way for youth to create autonomy. Lingo separates young from old; allows informal chat while excluding others and fosters fresh opinions of what is acceptable.

"Geeve" though? Thanks to Toronto's hardcore punk-influenced electronic upstarts Abandon All Ships, a new word is about to enter common vernacular. Only those who understand it are on their side of the generation gap.

"Geeve's got multiple meanings but the most important one is that we just don't (care)," laughs Aita. "We (used) this word a lot growing up. It's like, whatever happens, happens. We're still gonna do things our way."

That they are. The word has become so pivotal to Aita, bassist Martin Broda, guitarists Kyler Stephen Browne and Andrew Paiano, drummer Daniel Paiano and keyboardist Sebastian Cassisi-Nunez, it's the official title of their debut full-length.

▶ Abandon All Ships gained popularity after going on MuchMusic's DisBand program.

"We bring '90s Euro into our hardcore but it's not referenced as dance, techno or trance."
VOCALIST ANGELO AITA, ABANDON ALL SHIPS

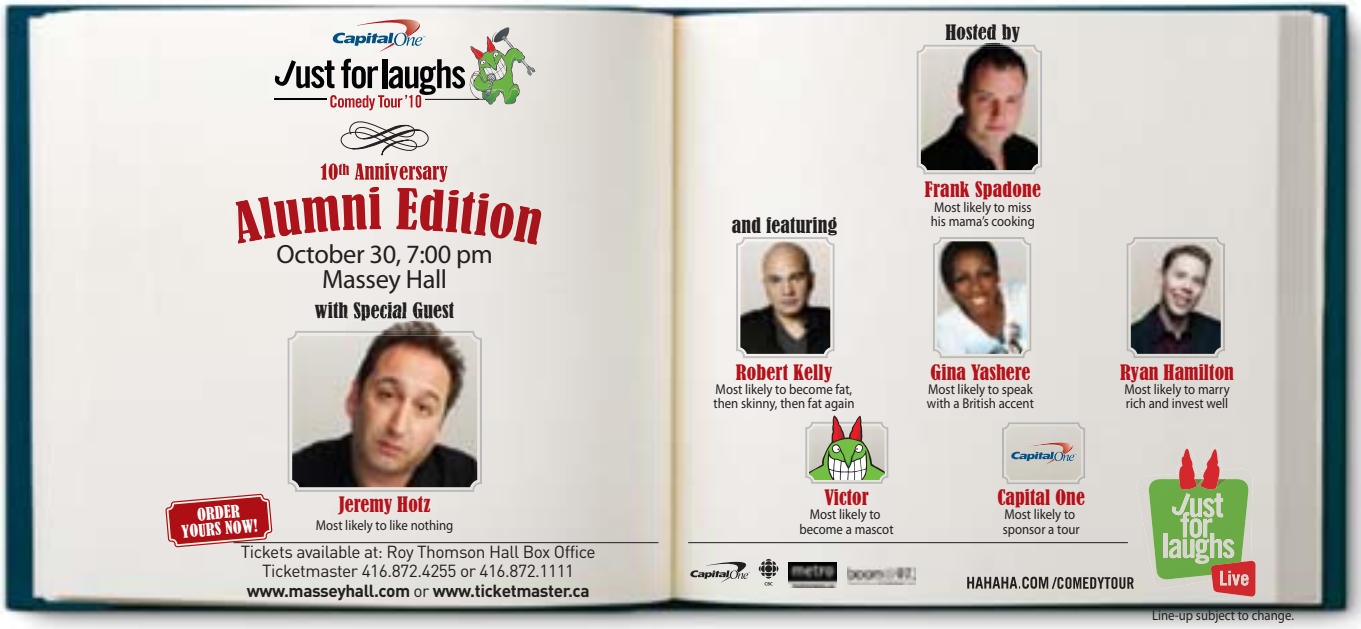
At that, Geeving (Underground Operations/Universal Music Canada) is bold. Delving into unexplored territory, it finds punk and electronica — two vastly different musical genres — uniting as though they've always been together. Channelling their inherently danceable Euro-pop grooves through a severe filter of punk's combative aggression, Geeving is as unique as it is provocative.

"We're interested in everything from modern hardcore and metal like Parkway Drive meshed together with a throwback-'90s Euro style including Joée, DJ Company," Aita notes, explaining how the band created such an anomalous style.

"We grew up through the '90s and Euro was shoved in your face all the time so it helped shape what we do. Nobody's mixed these two elements together before but we genuinely love both of them."

Apparently they're not alone in their adoration of disparity. AAS has garnered impressive popularity during their stint on the second season of MuchMusic program DisBAND, acclaim sure to push Geeving to the top of many charts. Not that AAS could "geeve" a rat's bum cheeks. Aita declares that regardless of acceptance, they're gonna geeve it their all.

"We have 'Geeving' tattooed on our bodies, it has that much meaning to us. The sincerity, creativity and passion of our music is undeniable."



Mars taints his image

Pop star Bruno Mars due in court on charges of cocaine posession Could face up to four years in prison Industry experts don't believe arrest will hurt singer's rising career Mars' tour to kick off in November

Bruno Mars should be having the best week ever: He has the No. 1 song in America, his debut album, Doo-Wops & Hooligans, was released this week and his 25th birthday is on Friday.

But while singer-songwriter-producer has much to smile about, at the same time, his success is being tainted by a recent felony charge.

Mars was arrested last month for allegedly possessing 2.6 grams of cocaine after performing at a Las Vegas nightclub. He's due in court Nov. 18 and if convicted, he faces up to four years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

But some industry experts believe the drug charge won't do much harm to the singer's rising career.

"I don't think he meant it to come off that way, but his recent arrest shows that he has a little bit of edge I suppose," said Craig Marks, the editor of Billboard.

Marks said the arrest might have the unintended effect of introducing Mars to a wider celebrity audience than he would have enjoyed before.

"It's not the best kind of publicity and hopefully it doesn't really indicate some kind of deeper problem," Marks said, "but the fact is that I don't think it will harm his following."

The drug charge for the talented musician comes as a surprise. Though a newcomer, the image Mars built was an easygoing, wholesome one.

He's the man with the cooing falsetto and guitar grooves, behind the scene and in front of it. He sang on, co-wrote and co-produced two of the year's biggest songs: Travie McCoy's jam Billionaire and B.o.B's No. 1 rap groove Nothin' on You. And Mars' own single, the pop tune `Just the Way You Are, has made it to the top spot of Billboard's Hot 100 chart.

"He's got a good mix of R&B and pop styles, which is very 'right' right now," Marks said.

Mars is one-third of the production trio the Smeezingtons, which includes Philip Lawrence and Ari Levine. Mars said they put together Nothin' on You and Billionaire in a single day. A new take on the ol' sticky pecan pie

This pie was inspired by the classic sticky pecan pie This version is bright with the colour and flavour of dried cranberries as well

The difference between flaky and mealy pie crusts is mostly in the technique. Check out Metronews.ca for a variety of stories and recipes on crusts, and when you're done making one — a flaky one specifically — try this delicious recipe:

Cranberry Almond Pistachio Pie

Preparation:

1. Heat oven to 180 C (350 F). Place a baking sheet in the oven.
2. In a small microwave-safe bowl, combine cranberries and water. Microwave on high for 1 minute or until very hot. Set aside to cool. Once cooled, drain and discard water.
3. In a medium pan over medium-high, heat brown sugar, maple syrup, molasses, cream and butter until boiling. Remove from heat.
4. In a medium, heat-safe bowl, whisk egg yolks until smooth. While whisking continuously, slowly pour hot sugar mixture into egg yolks, allowing yolks to heat up gradually until entire mixture is incorporated.
5. Fit a single pie crust into a pie pan, trimming and crimping edge.
6. Sprinkle almonds, pistachios and drained cranberries evenly into pie crust. Pour filling mixture over nuts and cranberries, making sure they are evenly coated. Place pie on baking sheet. Bake for 45 minutes or until filling is slightly puffed and crust is golden. Makes 8 servings. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients :

- 250 ml dried cranberries
- 250 ml water
- 250 ml dark brown sugar
- 250 ml maple syrup
- 15 ml molasses
- 50 ml heavy cream
- 50 ml butter
- 6 egg yolks
- 125 ml slivered almonds, toasted
- 125 ml pistachios
- 1 uncooked flaky pie crust, bottom only

▶ This cranberry almond pistachio pie is housed in a flaky pie crust.

Key to crusts

- Flaky, mealy and cookie crusts must be rolled, then fitted into a pie or tart pan. Crumb crusts are dumped into the pan, then pressed into place.
- Flaky, mealy and cookie crusts need to be edged.
- Whatever variety crust you use, it's a good idea to set the pie on a baking sheet when you place it in the oven.
- Most crusts can be prepared ahead of time and stored until needed.

Biking the Big Apple

With New York adding new bike lanes, tourists are trying the city from another vantage point

MARY ALTAFFER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ In the last four years, the New York City Department of Transportation has added more than 200 miles of bikes lanes

In his essay Taming the Bicycle, Mark Twain cautiously recommended bicycling: "You will not regret it, if you live."

That has always gone doubly for biking in New York.

But the city has undergone a two-wheeled makeover. In the last four years, the New York City Department of Transportation has added more than 320 kilometres of bikes lanes. The number of cyclists has increased 80 per cent in the past decade. The city's goal is 2,800 kilometres of total bike lanes by 2030.

Earlier this year, National Geographic Traveler magazine did something that might once have been unthinkable: It put New York on a list of the most bike-friendly cities in the country, alongside Portland, Ore.

"If you didn't do the tour, you wouldn't know where to start...It's so big!"
GARY DELIZ

While biking has exploded for New Yorkers, tourists are quietly following. It is, after all, a great way to experience a new place: Faster than walking so you can cover a lot of ground, but far closer to your surroundings than a car.

In New York, it can be dizzying: rolling past Washington Square Park one moment, breezing along the Hudson the next. In a city where freedom of movement can often feel locked in gridlock, on a bike, one sails through the throngs.

Musician and New Yorker David Byrne wrote in his 2009 book Bicycle Diaries that riding through a city "is like navigating the collective neural pathways of some vast global mind."

The neural pathways of New York, though, are often strewn with potholes, aggressive drivers, unobservant pedestrians and — often the worst of all — pushy cyclists. New York has been significantly tamed when it comes to biking, but it's not exactly Amsterdam.

Nevertheless, tourists, having long endured double-decker buses and plodding ferries, are understandably looking for a new vantage point. A number of tours have sprung up and found visitors willing to strap on a helmet.

"A bus tour just did not hold the same appeal to me — it's too passive," said Michelle Wright, 45, of Graham, N.C.

Recently, Wright and her two kids — a 15-year-old daughter and a 12-year-old son — did a tour of the Brooklyn Bridge and along the Hudson River through Bike and Roll NYC. The company has several locations for renting bikes, including Pier 84, near 12th Avenue and 43rd Street; Battery Park, and Central Park at Columbus Circle. The Pier 84 location provides easy access to the bike path along the city's relatively new but much-cherished Hudson River Greenway, which runs along the West Side of Manhattan from Battery Park at the southern tip to Dyckman Street on the northern tip.

Bike and Roll NYC tours ($40-50, two to three hours) depart daily; popular routes include Central Park and the Brooklyn Bridge. The company is listed among sightseeing choices on discounted visitor passes like the Explorer Pass.

"I felt very safe," said Wright. "More often than not, we were on a designated greenway. We felt the most in danger from the manic bikers on the Brooklyn Bridge."

▶ The city's goal is 1,800 miles of total bike lanes by 2030.

The tour guide, too, made Wright feel like she was "sneaking in a little bit of historical sightseeing on my kids without them realizing it." A bike rental, a helmet and water were included, as is the case with most tours.

Gary Deliz, 26, visited New York earlier this year with his girlfriend. They chose a Central Park tour, thinking they could save a little time on their itinerary.

"If you didn't do the tour, you wouldn't know where to start," said Deliz of Central Park. "It's so big!"

There's even mountain biking in New York on trails in Highbridge Park in Upper Manhattan and Cunningham Park in Queens — a good option for those who like thick tires and irony.

New York is actually home to the oldest bike path in the country: the Ocean Parkway bike path in Brooklyn, which begins near the southeast corner of Prospect Park and ends in Coney Island. Constructed in 1894 and designed by Frederick Olmsted and Calvert Vaux (the designers of Central Park and Prospect Park), it's a designated landmark.

New York, it turns out, has always been a bike town.

ADVERTISING FEATURE

A family's search for the perfect cottage.

The search for a family cottage isn't as easy as one might think. It's location, amenities, activities for the kids and more importantly fitting the purchase into the family budget. Everyone has a favourite memory of spending summers at the cottage and if you don't you must have heard a story or two.

The cottage experience is as Canadian as peameal bacon or real maple syrup and should be experienced by everyone at least once in their life. Sitting by a campfire roasting hot dogs and marshmallows, and making "smores" is a rite of passage for any young camper.

After a lot of research what we found is, that cottages can be very expensive to say the least. Gone were the days that I grew up, where a $20,000 investment got you a family cottage on the lake. The cottages we liked seemed to cost as much as our home if not more, with some over four hundred thousand dollars. The more we thought about cottage ownership the more we realized it would mean two houses to maintain financially and physically. After all the whole idea was to get away from cutting grass and fixing things so I could spend more time with my children and simply relaxing.

"Fractional Ownership" cottages were affordable but they have maintenance fees and we couldn't justify spending over one hundred thousand dollars for something the family could only use for only 4 or 5 weeks a year.

So what was the answer? Woodland Estate on Lake Seymour and the world famous Trent Severn Waterway was the perfect spot for my family. Less than 2 hours from Toronto, Woodland Estate was one of the best lake front properties we had come across.

It sounded all too good to be true, full ownership, maintenance free and activities for the kids..."so what's was the catch"?

We soon found out there wasn't one.

Ventura Resorts call them "Summer Homes", the affordable way to own a family summer getaway.

After the resort tour, we knew Woodland Estate was the perfect alternative for our family. We got a beautiful location on the water, a short drive from our home and a budget friendly family "cottage" that we own.

Neither a typical trailer nor conventional cottage, these modular-style homes are beautifully furnished and decorated with "at home" amenities including full-sized kitchens, 4 piece baths and large decks, and we got it all for just $89,900. The models come in one, two and three bedroom floor plans that can sleep up to eight people comfortably.

As owners we can take advantage of the activities and amenities the resort has to offer, from BBQ's, kids activities, the best fishing ever, boat rentals, outdoor pool and more! PLUS we can earn up to $10,000 renting our home out when we're not using it with the Ventura Resorts Rental Program!

If you are in the market for the cottage alternative contact our friends at Woodland Estate at 1-877-814-4141 or just visit their website at www.woodlandestate.com.

Giguere helps Leafs to victory

Brent, Kessel, MacArthur score as Toronto downs Montreal in opener

LEAFS	CANADIENS
3	2

J-S Giguere made sure the Toronto Maple Leafs season got off to a winning start.

The veteran goaltender made 25 saves Thursday as the Leafs edged the short-staffed Montreal Canadiens 3-2 in the regular-season opener for both teams.

Goaltending was one of the key reasons Leafs coach Ron Wilson felt good heading into the year, and Giguere justified that optimism. He kicked away a great Andrei Kostitsyn chance early and wisely poke-checked the puck off Lars Eller's stick in the third period with his team clinging to a one-goal lead.

Giguere also weathered a late storm as the Habs pushed for the tying goal, sticking out his left pad to deny Canadiens captain Brian Gionta twice from in close.

Tim Brent, Phil Kessel, Clarke MacArthur scored for the Maple Leafs, who won their first home opener since October 2000.

Dustin Boyd and Jeff Halpern replied in their first games for Montreal.

It was a typically tight game between the old rivals, who needed extra time to decide five of their six meetings a year ago. That includes last season's opener, when Montreal tied it late before pulling out a 4-3 win in overtime.

Only six Leafs players who played in that game were on the ice for this one — a sign of the massive overhaul GM Brian Burke has undertaken over the last 12 months.

MacArthur, one of the new faces, scored the eventual winner. He made a nice play to beat Habs defenceman Jaroslav Spacek before putting a nice backhander behind Carey Price at 1:36 of the third period.

Halpern replied less than a minute later to make it 3-2, but that was as close as Montreal would get.

Toronto took advantage of a Canadiens team that was missing some key personnel. Winger Mike Cammalleri sat out a one-game suspension while defencemen Andrei Markov and Roman Hamrlik were each recovering from knee injuries.

Eller replaced Cammalleri on a line with Tomas Plekanec and Andrei Kostitsyn, and did an admirable job in just his eighth NHL game.

Yankees take stranglehold

Pettitte, Berkman put Minnesota on the brink of elimination

Andy Pettitte and the New York Yankees stumbled through September and landed in the AL wild-card spot.

As the Minnesota Twins can attest, the Yankees are hardly an underdog in October.

Pushing the home-field advantage back in Minnesota's face, Pettitte turned in a vintage post-season performance with seven smooth innings and Lance Berkman had two big hits for New York in a 5-2 victory over the Twins Thursday evening for a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five division series.

5	2
YANKEES	TWINS

Berkman hit a go-ahead home run in the fifth and a tiebreaking double in the seventh against Carl Pavano, sending the Twins to their 11th straight post-season loss. Eight of those have come against the Yankees, who trailed in each of those games.

The Twins haven't won a post-season game since 2004, matching the Philadelphia Phillies (1915-1976) for the second-longest streak in history behind the Boston Red Sox (1986-1995) and their 13 in a row.

Berkman, yet another big-name veteran finding a place on a Yankees post-season roster, even on the downside of his career, made it 2-1 with his drive into the left-centre bullpen in the fifth. His double in the seventh — one pitch after it appeared Pavano sneaked strike three past him — drove in Jorge Posada and gave New York a 3-2 lead. The disputed call by plate umpire Hunter Wendelstedt led to the ejection of Twins manager Ron Gardenhire following Berkman's double.

Derek Jeter chased his old teammate Pavano off the mound with a half-swing RBI single to make it 4-2. The Yankees head back home for Game 3 Saturday night with a commanding lead over the team they own in October.

Rays on the ropes as Wilson allows only two hits

Two dominating pitching performances and a long home run by playoff neophyte Michael Young have the Texas Rangers on the verge of winning a post-season series for the first time.

6	0
RANGERS	RAYS

Young hit a three-run homer one pitch after keeping his at-bat alive with a disputed check-swing, helping C.J. Wilson and the AL West champions beat the Tampa Bay Rays 6-0 Thursday for a 2-0 lead in their AL division series.

Texas is the only current major league franchise that's never won a playoff series. After winning consecutive games on the road, that can change with one victory when the best-of-five matchup shifts to Rangers Ballpark this weekend.

Game 3 is Saturday, with Matt Garza pitching for Tampa Bay against Colby Lewis.

Ian Kinsler also homered for the Rangers, who are in the playoffs for the first time since 1999 and hadn't won a post-season game in 14 years before Cliff Lee shut down the sputtering Rays in their home park Wednesday.

Wilson was equally impressive, allowing two hits in 6⅔ innings. He gave up a single to leadoff man Jason Bartlett to start the game, then limited the Rays to just three baserunners on an error, a walk and a hit batter over the next five innings. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WONDER WOMEN OF WRESTLING

It's a rare jewel to discover something completely out of the ordinary in sport. Few are the spectacles that cause one to sit up and take notice.

Brent Hayden's marvellous swim in the 100-metre freestyle, the fastest of the season, was certainly one. So was an evening in which Canadians won three gold medals as female grapplers made their debut at the Commonwealth Games.

"I was not letting that go," said the effervescent Ohenewa Akuffo, a Brampton native who claimed an overtime victory in the 72-kilogram category.

"Coming to these Games we wanted to let other countries know you don't mess with Canadian women and I kind of like that!"

Akuffo's smile was brilliantly vicious.

Justine Bouchard of Calgary knocked off a tough Nigerian fighter who was coached by Daniel Igali.

This was the same Igali who had fled to Canada as a refugee and delivered Olympic gold for his adopted country at the 2000 Olympics in Sydney. He became a legend in the process.

"Coming to these Games we wanted to let other countries know you don't mess with Canadian women and I kind of like that!"

OHENEWA AKUFFO, CANADIAN GOLD MEDAL-WINNING WRESTLER

Then there was Carol Huynh of Hazelton, B.C.

Tiny and unassuming, the Olympic champion of 2008 waded into the lion's den to struggle mightily and eventually defeat the crowd favourite from India.

"She fought pretty hard and it felt like the crowd was willing her to take it," Huynh reflected with glittering gold adorning her neck. "But I thought to myself, this is mine!"

It was that rare evening when everything seemed to go right. In the one final where Canada was not represented, a wrestler from India won the gold medal.

The place was packed and as the young woman, known simply as Geeta, paraded before the fans, the cameras and the media throng, she smiled, clutched her medal and held it aloft.

An outpouring of joyous emotion ensued. She stopped to do myriad interviews and her cauliflower ears only added to her charm. Geeta's admirers loved her at first sight.

"She will be a star for all of the Indian youngsters," offered one local journalist. "Men get so much attention here and so especially for the girls she has become suddenly very important."

They are all important.

As Commonwealth debutantes they have created a feel-good story.

The women of wrestling are the diamonds in the rough that New Delhi desperately needed to give these Games some lustre.

Concussion sidelines Cutler

Jay Cutler was in helmet and pads at practice, just don't expect to see him on the field when the Chicago Bears visit Carolina Sunday.

The quarterback will sit out the game against the Panthers with a concussion from being sacked nine times in the first half of last week's loss to the New York Giants.

"He's making progress," coach Lovie Smith said Thursday. "All we know right now is he's not playing this week. Hopefully, he'll be ready to go next week."

▶ Bears QB Jay Cutler

Cutler is among several players who have had to sit out at least one game with a concussion, including fellow quarterbacks Kevin Kolb and Matt Moore.

Cutler was examined by team and independent doctors after practising on a limited basis Wednesday, and the decision was made to have him sit this week.

He went through another limited practice Thursday and declined comment afterward. He is also expected to practise again Friday and have his status re-evaluated next week.

Veteran Todd Collins, who took over to start the second half against the Giants and left with a stinger, will make his first start in three years.

Raps look to do more with less

Lack of star player leads to new approach for club

The Toronto Raptors are just more than a week into their first training camp of the post-Chris Bosh era, and the changes so far go beyond the obvious.

Somehow, head coach Jay Triano needs to find a way to make less accomplish more in time for the team's Oct. 27 season opener against the visiting New York Knicks, a difficult task even at the best of times.

And these are far from the best of times for the Raptors, who watched their star player join the Miami Heat over the summer after a 40-42 season cost the team a trip to the playoffs.

But after five days in Vancouver capped by Wednesday night's 129-78 pre-season drubbing of the Phoenix Suns, the foundation of a new approach has been laid, and the building can now commence.

"It's funny," general manager Bryan Colangelo said this week from Vancouver. "It's not that we're treating our players differently this year — there's a little less focus on any one player, there's no one you have to defer to. It's actually quite refreshing from the standpoint of the way I think Jay is dealing with the players, and with the way the players are reacting to that approach."

"I think we're probably going to exceed expectations, at least based on what the early estimates are for our productivity this year." RAPTORS GM BRYAN COLANGELO

Colangelo's words are reminiscent of how some Toronto Blue Jays felt this season about life after Roy Halladay. While the ace's dominance on the mound was dearly missed, the "tightness and tension walking around the clubhouse," as sophomore lefty Brett Cecil put it in July, was not. The hole Halladay's departure was expected to leave instead provided room for others to grow, and the Blue Jays were able to far exceed expectations.

The Raptors can only hope the same happens for players like Andrea Bargnani, DeMar DeRozan, Amir Johnson, Linas Kleiza and Sonny Weems, and that they, too, turn dire pre-season predictions on their ear.

27.5 The early over-under lines for Toronto wins this season sits at 27.5, a number that portends a top-5 draft pick next summer.

Maybe that's why Colangelo boldly feels his team is likely to "exceed expectations."

"I don't think you're going to see any one player replace Chris, but a combination of the pieces, a combination of the things will certainly lead to a new storyline," said Colangelo. "Jay's taking a new approach with the team, it's obviously less star-centric, there's no reason to cater to one player, to design an offence around one player, you design an offence and a defence around team strengths.

"Right now, with the youthfulness we have, the athleticism we have, we're able to coach the team a little bit differently. Like it or not, when you have a star player, you've got to treat him like a star."

Doc a tough act to follow

- Halladay set the bar high for fellow Phillies ace Oswalt with historic no-hitter in Game 1
- Former Astro has been Philadelphia's best pitcher down the stretch with a 7-1 record

Top that.

Long before Roy Halladay threw the second no-hitter in post-season history, Roy Oswalt and Cole Hamels talked about Philadelphia's three aces always trying to outdo each other.

Halladay set the bar high with a brilliant performance in the Phillies' 4-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in Game 1 of the NL division series Wednesday.

Next up is Oswalt. He starts Game 2 Friday.

REDS PHILLIES

Time: 6:07 PM Friday
Channel: Sportsnet

"We're up 1-0. And, you know, like that's kind of how I want Roy Oswalt to feel. I just want him to do the same thing that Roy Halladay did," Phillies manager Charlie Manuel said Thursday. "Just go out there and be comfortable, get a comfortable atmosphere and pitch to his ability and his knowledge on how to pitch. Just be himself."

The only way for Oswalt to top Halladay would be to pitch a perfect game. Don Larsen has the only one in the post-season, throwing it for the New York Yankees against Brooklyn in the 1956 World Series.

While Halladay is a leading candidate to win the NL Cy Young Award and now has a no-hitter to go with his perfect game earlier this season, Oswalt was Philadelphia's best pitcher down the stretch.

Acquired from Houston July 29, the three-time all-star went 7-1 with a 1.74 ERA in 13 games with the Phillies. Oswalt was 7-0 with a 1.17 ERA in his last 10 starts. Halladay was 8-2 with a 3.10 ERA during that span. Hamels was pretty impressive, too. He was 5-3 with a 2.15 ERA.

"Any time you get involved with a group that you have here, as far as the atmosphere and the starting staff and the guys on the team, you come into the clubhouse and you just kind of expect to win," Oswalt said.

"You have so much talent one through eight in the lineup. You have a team that plays with the starting staff, and you have a real good mix of guys here. We try to pull for each other and push each other as much as possible."

Jordan scores first video game cover

Years after retiring, hoops legend returns as unlockable bonus player

2K SPORTS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After all those championships and MVP awards, Michael Jordan has finally arrived — on the cover of a basketball video game.

Jordan fronts NBA 2K11, a game that allows fans to add Jordan to their favourite team — if they can first replicate some of his greatest highlights.

One of sports' top pitchmen during his Hall of Fame playing career, Jordan had never before appeared on the cover of an NBA-licensed basketball game.

Now the owner of the Charlotte Bobcats, the six-time champion with the Chicago Bulls said Thursday the deciding factor in doing it now was the opportunity "to connect to this generation, when in essence a lot of these young kids never saw me play."

To obtain Jordan for their team, players first have to unlock him by completing the "Jordan Challenge," a series of 10 of Jordan's most memorable performances that he helped select.

Among them are his 63-point performance against Larry Bird and eventual champion Boston in 1986, and Chicago's Game 5 victory over Utah in the 1997 NBA finals, when Jordan shook off an illness to lead the Bulls within a victory of another title.

Once that's been completed, fans can place a rookie Jordan onto their current team as if he were in the 2010 NBA draft.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You are not the sort to back down when someone opposes you but you will find yourself up against a tough opponent today and the planets suggest it might be wise to let them have their little victory.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 It's make or break time for a relationship and what happens over the next 24 hours will determine whether you stay together or go your separate ways.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Be careful who you trust today because there is a real possibility that someone is out to deceive you. Mercurywarns you would be wise to err on the side of caution.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 It would, of course, be nice if you could get along with everyone you meet but Cancerians are sensitive people and some individuals simply rub you up the wrong way.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 What happens today may seem dramatic, but is really of only minor importance. What does matter, of course, is how you choose to react to this and similar situations.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Mercury, your ruler, close to Saturn, planet of restriction, will limit your options, but that's no bad thing. If you are going to make the most of your talents you must focus on the one goal that truly matters.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You may be entitled to tell people how to behave but that does not mean you have to do so. Be smart today and let those around you work out for themselves what it is they should be doing.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Your attitude towards someone will change dramatically today. You simply do not have the time or the patience. They get it right or they get going.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 According to the planets you have allowed yourself to be fooled into believing that someone you work or do business with has your interests at heart when, in fact, they care only for themselves.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 A difference of opinion is just that. It's isn't a fight, still less a war, and if it seems to be heading in that direction then obviously you need to get a grip on yourself. Lighten up, it's life.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You may find it easy to keep up with the latest fashions, but some people are not so lucky and a friend or family member will need your help today to get to grips with something they don't understand.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 You seem to be caught in the middle of a battle of wills and you're not enjoying the experience one little bit. Tell both sides that you don't intend to support either one of them. SALLY BROMPTON
